

From April 25 to 27, 2022, Data for Progress conducted a survey of 1,116 likely voters nationally using web panel respondents. The sample was weighted to be representative of likely voters by age, gender, education, race, and voting history. The survey was conducted in English. The margin of error is ± 3 percentage points.

NB: subgroups with a n-size less than 50 (<50) are not shown on these cross-tabs. We choose not to display N<50 subgroups because the sample is too small to have statistical significance. We did, however, take samples of these subgroups for representational and weighting purposes to accurately reflect the electorate makeup. Some values may not add up to 100 due to rounding.

N=1,116 unless otherwise specified.

[9] As you may know, last year President Biden and Democrats in Congress proposed the Build Back Better Act. However, lawmakers in the Senate failed to pass the bill.

Now, the Senate is discussing a new bill to help families deal with inflation and rising energy costs through investments in clean energy production. However, this bill's investments in clean energy would be smaller than those proposed in the Build Back Better Act.

Would you support or oppose lawmakers passing this new bill?
