

DATA FOR PROGRESS

From March 3 to 6, 2023, Data for Progress conducted a survey of 1,227 U.S. likely voters nationally using web panel respondents. The sample was weighted to be representative of likely voters by age, gender, education, race, geography, and recalled presidential vote. The survey was conducted in English. The margin of error associated with the sample size is ± 3 percentage points. Results for subgroups of the sample are subject to increased margins of error. For more information please visit dataforprogress.org/our-methodology.

NB: subgroups with a n-size less than 50 (<50) are not shown on these cross-tabs. We choose not to display N<50 subgroups because the sample is too small to have statistical significance. We did, however, take samples of these subgroups for representational and weighting purposes to accurately reflect the electorate makeup. Some values may not add up to 100 due to rounding.

N=1,227 unless otherwise specified.

[1] Some lawmakers in Congress are proposing to end paying workers with disabilities wages that are below the federal minimum wage. Currently, federal law allows employers to pay workers with a disability a subminimum wage of an average of $3.34 an hour.

Do you support or oppose ending subminimum wages for workers with disabilities?

When thinking about this, which of the following comes closest to your view, even if neither is exactly correct?

We should end subminimum wages. This practice underestimates and discriminates against workers with disabilities who deserve to be paid a fair wage and treated like every worker in America.	68	76	76	67	64	60
We should continue subminimum wages. It allows employers to expand and support workers with disabilities, and ending the practice would cause many people who take pride in having a paid job to become unemployed.	22	16	21	20	26	25
