Democrat Theresa Greenfield widens her lead to four points over Republican incumbent Joni Ernst

President Donald Trump maintains a one point lead over Democrat Joe Biden

IOWA SENATE

In Iowa, Democrat Theresa Greenfield is going up against incumbent Republican Joni Ernst. We find that Greenfield has a four point lead over Ernst (47 percent Greenfield, 43 percent Ernst). This puts Greenfield running five points ahead of Biden in the state. Compared to our last poll of this race in July, where we found Greenfield with a two point lead and 11 percent of voters not sure, these results suggest undecided voters are making up their minds in Greenfield’s favor. Libertarian Rick Stewart and Independent Suzanne Herzog enjoy three percent support (2 percent Steward, 1 percent Herzog).

Absentee voting in Iowa began on October 5. Among respondents who say they have already voted, Greenfield holds a significant advantage with 65 percent of the early vote compared to 29 percent for Ernst.

IOWA PRESIDENTIAL

In Iowa, Trump leads Biden by one point (48 percent Trump, 47 percent Biden). Libertarian Jo Jorgenson registers two percent of support. Iowa went for Donald Trump by nine points in 2016 (51 percent Trump, 42 percent Clinton).
POLICIES

Voters in Iowa oppose the Republican agenda for the Supreme Court. Regarding the upcoming case which will decide the future of the Affordable Care Act, Iowa voters prefer, by a 48-point margin, the Supreme Court rule the ACA constitutional and leave in place expanded Medicaid and protections for pre-existing conditions.

When asked which comes closest to their belief, 80 percent of Iowa voters think businesses and corporations should face limits on how much money they can spend on political donations and expenditures.
